The test consists of multiple-choice questions that assess communication skills, including conversation starters, small talk, and basic interactions. There are two parts to the test: short conversations (questions 14-40) and multiple-choice questions (questions 1-13). The short conversations cover topics such as weather, family, hobbies, food, travel, and social media. The multiple-choice questions assess understanding of language concepts, such as phone numbers, email addresses, and basic phrases. The test is divided into several sections, including: * Section A: Short conversations (questions 14-40) * Section B: Multiple-choice questions (questions 1-13) * Section C: Additional information about the test, such as the test date, location, and student's name. Overall, the test aims to evaluate a student's ability to communicate effectively in everyday situations.
