He is always very clean. Most of the time that he rings the bell they come soon to attend him. He doesn't call much. The CNA s are nice to us, although they have about 30 patients to take care of. They work very Hard and always come in with a nice attitude. Therapists are good. Nurses answer what you ask them and say what you tell them. We are nice to staff and likewise. they clean the room every day. They tell the residents to stay on their wheelchairs so they don't fall. The Lady of social services is very helpful. The nurse manager sees that staff do their work and help them too.the room are semiprivate an some private. They are clean. Have plenty of chairs for family. I don't know about the activities because my father doesn't go because he sleeps a lot.Nursing HomesretiredseniorI am/was a resident of this facilityThis is not a very good place. Call bells are not in a timely manner and if you need pain medicine(Tylenol) you could wait up to 2 to 3 hours. breakfast is the same thing every day, and the nurses do not respond to the call light during the nighttime hours. Most of the nurses are kind but they are always running out of supplies and are short staffed.Nursing HomesPatI am a friend or relative of a current/past residentMy brother was put at The Terrace of Jacksonville for rehab. He is supposed to be on a regular diet, and they kept bringing an engineered diet. His room is just average. When you call for a nurse, sometimes it's an hour and a half before anybody shows up. I came in Tuesday afternoon at 1:00, and he was laying on the floor. A nurse's aide had spilled water all over the floor so when he was getting out of his bed to get to his wheelchair, he slipped. He lay there for over 20 minutes. He had called for a nurse twice. No one came. When I got there, the nurse's station was right outside his room and I told them that he was lying on the floor. Of course, the help then started coming in. They gave me no explanation. They just got him back up into bed and changed his clothes. That was unsatisfactory and the level of care there is just almost nonexistent. I have had trouble communicating with the people and I go over there at least every day. The physical therapy seems to be good though, but other than that, the overall care is a 1 rating at best.Nursing HomesBarbaraI am a friend or relative of a current/past residentMy husband is a resident of The Terrace of Jacksonville. They cannot keep staff, and right now, they have no one in charge because they keep leaving. They can't keep the help, and they should be paid a whole lot more for what they do. The CNAs, do the grunt work and they do not get paid enough. They have a very good one there that we liked. She took good care of my husband. She'd been there like five years or more, and she just asked for a little bit of a raise. They said no, so she left because she found a better-paying job. But that seems to be the way with a lot of these places, they have a big turnover. The food, I would say it's average. My husband will eat anything, but I haven't tasted it. Sometimes it looks good, sometimes it's mediocre. My husband's room is very small. I've seen some of the other rooms as I was walking in there, and some of them look larger. He can't participate in anything, but I think they do have like bingo, arts and crafts, and things like that for the people that can. They have a creative director or something. The staff, change every day. Every time I go in there, there's somebody new. But the permanent ones are nice and good. The facility always seems pretty clean. In terms of value for money, it's all I can afford. So, I guess we're getting what we pay for. Any other ones that I have looked up are a lot more money. I'm paying full price. I'm not on Medicaid yet, anywhere else was asking up to $5000 a month more. I just wish they could keep the help they need; they need to pay and have more. My biggest complaint, and they say this is coming from the governor, they're saying that they only need two CNAs to take care of several people. They cannot take care of that many. Sometimes, when I go in there, my husband has pooped in his diapers and lunch is coming around, so they've got lunch to do, and they cannot take care of him. So, they say they are complying with the law, but they have as many people on the floor as they're supposed to per person.Nursing HomesSharonI am a friend or relative of a current/past residentMy mother-in-law is at The Terrace of Jacksonville. She's in rehab right now, but there will transition over to long-term care. She's only been in there for a couple of weeks and as of now, the care seems very good. They see about her often. She's doing good on the rehab side. They're helping her get a little bit more energy by exercising her and building some muscle, to help her move around and such. The care is really good. The food is good for what she says. It looks like an older facility, but there are always people around. If you need help, the nurses' station is close. So far, I'm appreciating them. The staff is very informative and very helpful. They're helping us with the Medicaid process and getting all that lined up. They've been extremely helpful in that regard. They have a courtyard where they can go out and sit, a visitation room, which is a large room where they do a lot of activities, bingo, arts and crafts, and things like that. They have quite a bit of activities. She's given a monthly calendar of activities. They have a Sunday devotional that she does attend. There are activities daily for the residents and they do come in and get her. She's not able to walk on her own, so they come in and wheel her to whatever she wants to do that day.Nursing HomesPhoukeoI am a friend or relative of a current/past residentI had a family member who was admitted to Terrace of Jax for therapy. I am happy with the care they have given to my family. Although they are not perfect and it is very challenging to provide the best care with the current staffing issues in almost all healthcare facilities, I saw how hard the nurses have worked hard to take care of the residents there. I am also impressed with how approachable the medical team is. Seldom can you see a provider who you can talk to about your concerns. Dr Cantrells team has always been available for us especially in this difficult time. They are very nice, competent and are always there for you. The DON Milton is also there for all my questions. He is always around the unit. The admission team who helped my family did a great job. They have been promptly in dealing with our special case. Thank you to the staff of Terrace for doing your best in taking care of my loved-one. To the physical therapists/rehab team, you are all awesome. Thank you for working hard in ensuring my family gets to walk and be independent again.Nursing HomesBlue Bird CryingI am/was a resident of this facility was a resident for two months, I was there for rehab. There rehab staff is outstanding! There program for therapy was very helpful for me to be able to be more mobile. As for nursing, the day shift was ok... There was at least one or two good nurses that did answer the call bell. I have experienced being in soiled diapers for hours. The night shift rarely answers the call bell and if they do, they shut it off and says they will be back, well, they don't. As for the food, Lunch is the go to hot meal that is sometimes good but always cold. Dinner is usually a wet sandwich that sucks. And at times the food was burned, undercooked and they us can food with most of the meals. Thank God for takeout! Which was a must. What broke the camels back was... I was told that I have to air out at night on a bed liner... no diaper. I take a water pill and stool softener. I got very upset, and I realize that there inventory is more important than the care for the resident. It's time to check-out! Now the next problem, I had some money in account. I have left many messages for the past two months.. and wrote a letter. Lisa will not return my calls. I also talked to Kate.. nothing. So if you want to have your mom suffer, Send her to The Terrace of Jacksonville.Nursing HomesTGodardI am a friend or relative of a current/past residentThe staff is caring and compassionate. I have had several family members and friends at their facility and all had great outcomes.Nursing HomesBethLeitterI am a friend or relative of a current/past residentMy dear Mother was treated poorly and died here. Too many drugs her body couldn't handle.Nursing HomesThe DebsI am a friend or relative of a current/past residentMy wife fell and broke her hip. This was the facility that her insurance would approve. Scary situation, however the team from the office to the nursing staff to the Therapist have been so wonderful working with us both to get her ambulatory and well enough to come home. Special thanks to Ms T and Chris for going out of their way to see that she is comfortable and making this life changing accident more bearable. God Bless all of the staff.Nursing Homesissy125I am a friend or relative of a current/past residentMy mom is a resident at this facility. They take good care of her. Of course, there are things they could do better or upgrade that could be done to the facility. None are perfect and you're not going to find one that is. All in all my mom has been happy here and that is all I need to know. To me its worth the extra mileage to have my mom here. I feel very blessed knowing how much the staff and activities department works to make the residents happy and feel loved. They are very caring. Thank you Terrace of Jacksonville.Nursing HomesReviews2020I am a friend or relative of a current/past residentThe management of this place is very unprofessional. The Business Manager told me today that I could take my Mother Home. My mother who is 92 was accepted for Hospice Care no longer has any benefits left thru Medicare. She was scheduled to go back to her Assistant Living Facility. Unfortunately now that the Terrace has some positive Covid Cases My Mothers Facility said they could not take her back until she had been quarantined for 14 days. The Terrace Management Response is either pay for her to stay or take her home. Real compassionate management. More interested in the $ than the frail 92 year old resident.Nursing HomesJCRH I am a friend or relative of a current/past residentThey have taken good care of my mother but the business office is horrible. I have messages for Lisa; she never, never returns a call. I have to get ugly and demanding before anybody done. So frustrating. Nursing HomesMammaMiaI am a friend or relative of a current/past residentTruthfully, my mother would not be alive today if it weren't for the wonderful administration and focused, customized healthcare of TOJ. She has been a resident over 10 years and since I live 5 minutes away I pop in unexpectedly during all shifts. Granted, when the facility changed hands about 5 years ago there were rough patches, budget cuts & adjustments for everyone. Things are not always 100% perfect anywhere. For example, the food may not be gourmet quality, but it is still edible, plentiful and balanced for the most part. The dietitians & servers go out of their way to accommodate the restrictions & tastes of almost 200 residents. The long overdue multi- million dollar structural facelift was a welcome change. Security cameras were installed throughout the interior/exterior of the building, new energy efficient heating/cooling systems were installed, uniform entertainment, visiting schools, holiday fun, periodic Bingo, card games, socials, church services, movie nights, special family events, dinners, Homecoming dances, visits to residents, manicures, festive decorations, etc. Her team is tight & ultra talented. I feel blessed that TOJ was there back in July 2009 right when we needed them the most. Thank You just isn't enough to express my gratitude. Nursing HomesGranddaughter2019I am a friend or relative of a current/past residentThe staff there are very attentive and caring. It is a very clean building. The front desk greets you and they make you feel welcome. My loved one received excellent care there. I even call there sometimes just to say thank you for the wonderful care my grandmother received there. Nursing HomesRenée MasonI am a friend or relative of a current/past residentLove this facility when I visit my friends.Nursing HomesLeon I visited this facilityMy mother is in the Terrace of Jacksonville. She has been there for over 2 years. Her caregiver and I did not agree on many issues. In trying to find common ground to be able to discuss my mothers care she got very defensive leaving me no alternative but to ask the Terrace for a different caregiver. I brought the concern up to management several times and nothing was ever done. This is not a very friendly place for a loved one. The staff is insufficient and seems to run short handed all of the time. I say this because simple things like bringing her to the toilet took 1-2 hours. Of course by then she went in her pants. Or trying to get a response after pushing the button for anything was a waste of time.Nursing HomesEsandoo49I am a friend or relative of a current/past residentTerrace of Jacksonville is a terrible place for your loved on. Most of the nurses and caregivers are non caring and do not care about the patients siblings. My mom has been in their care for over 2 years. Recently I have been forbidden to go to the facility to visit my mother because of a misunderstanding with her caregiver. My Mom is in hospice and dying. I dont get along with my mothers caregiver. I have brought the situation up to management about the mistreatment of my mother and myself several times. Thought they would put someone more friendly in charge of my mother. They did nothing about it and now when my mother needs me the most I cant comfort her. I love her very much. I miss her.Nursing HomesBlinders are offI am/was a resident of this facilityI have been a patient in this facility twice for after surgery rehab. After reading the most recent review compared to the ones around 2014, I can tell you why the decline. The ownership. The difference is night and day. The previous ownership cared about the patients. The meals were varied and great. The activities were fun and numerous. The staff really cared and it showed. That all changed when Southlake turned into The Terrace. It is so obvious to anyone who has experienced Southlake vs. The Terrace. Now they are constantly short handed. CNAs don't want to be bothered with helping patients and get an attitude when asked for help. I complained to management but nothing has changed. The same staff who are not patient friendly are still there. No one does anything to make things better. I felt disregarded. The entire atmosphere is different. I don't know who owns the place now but they have let an excellent facility go down to below average. I am sorry to say. Nursing HomesCarroll am a friend or relative of a current/past residentMy sister's husband was in the Terrace of Jacksonville for three months for rehab. The facility was adequate, the therapy was wonderful, and the food was average. The staff in rehab was good, they offered mind games, reading, movies, bingo, wine and cheese socials, gardening, and nature walks.Nursing HomesCareful DaughterI am a friend or relative of a current/past residentMy mother was placed in this facility for short term rehabilitation. The Terrace seems woefully understaffed, especially the CNA team, which has the most interaction with the patients. On multiple occasions my mother has had to wait two or more hours to get someone to take her to the bathroom and/or to get her dressed in the morning. We've also had problems getting pain medication delivered to her in a timely manner and to a schedule so that it can be effective during her physical therapy sessions. Although we were told her toileting would be on a regularly scheduled basis, this isn't happening. If you or someone you love plans to go to this facility, please make sure they have a family member or friend to act as their advocate. The advocate should plan on spending several hours a day at the facility, especially the first few days. If the intended patient can't tell you what goes on when no family member or friend is there with them then I'd highly recommend you find another facility. I can't imagine how this facility got the ratings I've been seeing on the internet.Nursing HomesVivee49I am a friend or relative of a current/past residentMy mother is a resident at Terrace of Jacksonville. She is getting very good care. The staff know her name and treat her with kindness and respect. They are attentive to our questions and concerns about her care. She is in long term care and is having continuing rehab, which is helping her to stay involved and she is happier.Nursing HomesJackie47I am a friend or relative of a residentMy father is in a full-time nursing home now. He is at Terrace of Jacksonville. He went there from the hospital for rehab, and then it just progressed. They were so helpful in facilitating and keeping him full time, so we just chose to do that. It has been very good. We have been very pleased with it. From the very beginning, all the way through to having him admitted, the nursing staff is great, and the caregivers are great, so we have just been really pleased. It is just a relief for us in that we are just extremely pleased.Nursing HomesJanice38I am a friend or relative of a residentMy uncle is in rehab at Southlake. It is right next to the facility where my uncle was. So far, it has been very good. The staff is very responsive. The rooms are nice and clean. Right now, my uncle is too weak to do anything, so they are trying to do some therapy with him. He is just doing some basic rehab.Nursing HomesJackie6I am a friend or relative of a residentWe had to get my mother-in-law to a nursing home and Southlake Nursing was very responsive towards helping us. I would recommend everything about the place to anyone. Their food is very good and the staff is very helpful. They do dancing, coloring, and stuff like that. The rooms are spacious and good for the residents. The best thing about this community is its friendly staff. They make her feel welcome like she's a part of the community. She is very happy there now.Nursing Homesammie63I am a friend or relative of a residentMy mom is in rehab at this nursing center and this will more than likely be the nursing home we choose for her to stay in. The staff is so friendly and caring and so good with my mother. They talk to her like shes their family member, they treat her with dignity and respect and go out of the way to make her feel like shes at home. I am so grateful for them and for loving my mom the way we do at our house because it isn't easy deciding on placing a loved one in a nursing home. Its been very hard for me emotionally, especially around the holidays, but knowing that this nursing home will care for her like I did for 4 years living with me makes the transition a little easier.
